Three times All-ACC. Three times UPI Backfielder of the Week, UPI and AP All-American. And MVP of two bowl games — not bad for one guy.

The City Councils of both High Point and Raleigh even declared a day in his honor — “Ted Brown Day.”

Students and alumni were encouraged to write the national networks about him, bumper stickers heralded “Ted Brown — Running for the Heisman,” and Sports Illustrated sent a photographer.

Ted Brown made an impressive showing by placing fourth in the list of all-time NCAA rushers, although the “big” award, the Heisman Trophy, eluded him.

Brown ended his college career with a total of 4,602 yards, earning 1,350 of them in the 1978 season.

The 5-foot 10-inch High Point native got his first big break in the 1975 Indiana game. Moved up from the JV team to help a weak running back position, Brown ran for 121 yards. This was only the beginning of a long streak of game-breaking runs.

But the Wolfpack had much more going for it than Brown. It had Jim Ritcher, another All-American, Tim Gillespie, Chuck Stone, Chris Dieterich, and Frank Hitt who teamed up to form an almost unstoppable offensive line.

And the defense was superb. Bill Cowher, who lead the Pack with 195 tackles, along with Kyle Wescoe provided the Wolfpack with a tough linebacking corps.

And then there was Nathan Ritter, the sophomore place kicker who connected on 20 of 23 field goal attempts, including a 51 yard Tangerine Bowl record.

With this kind of talent, the Wolfpack was able to finish the season third in the ACC, place 19th in the nation, and win the 1978 Tangerine Bowl against the heavily favored Pitt Panthers — a team which was very vocal in its disregard for N.C. State.

Ted Brown's jersey, number 23, was retired this year — an honor bestowed upon only one other football player in Wolfpack history. But Brown proved himself worthy.

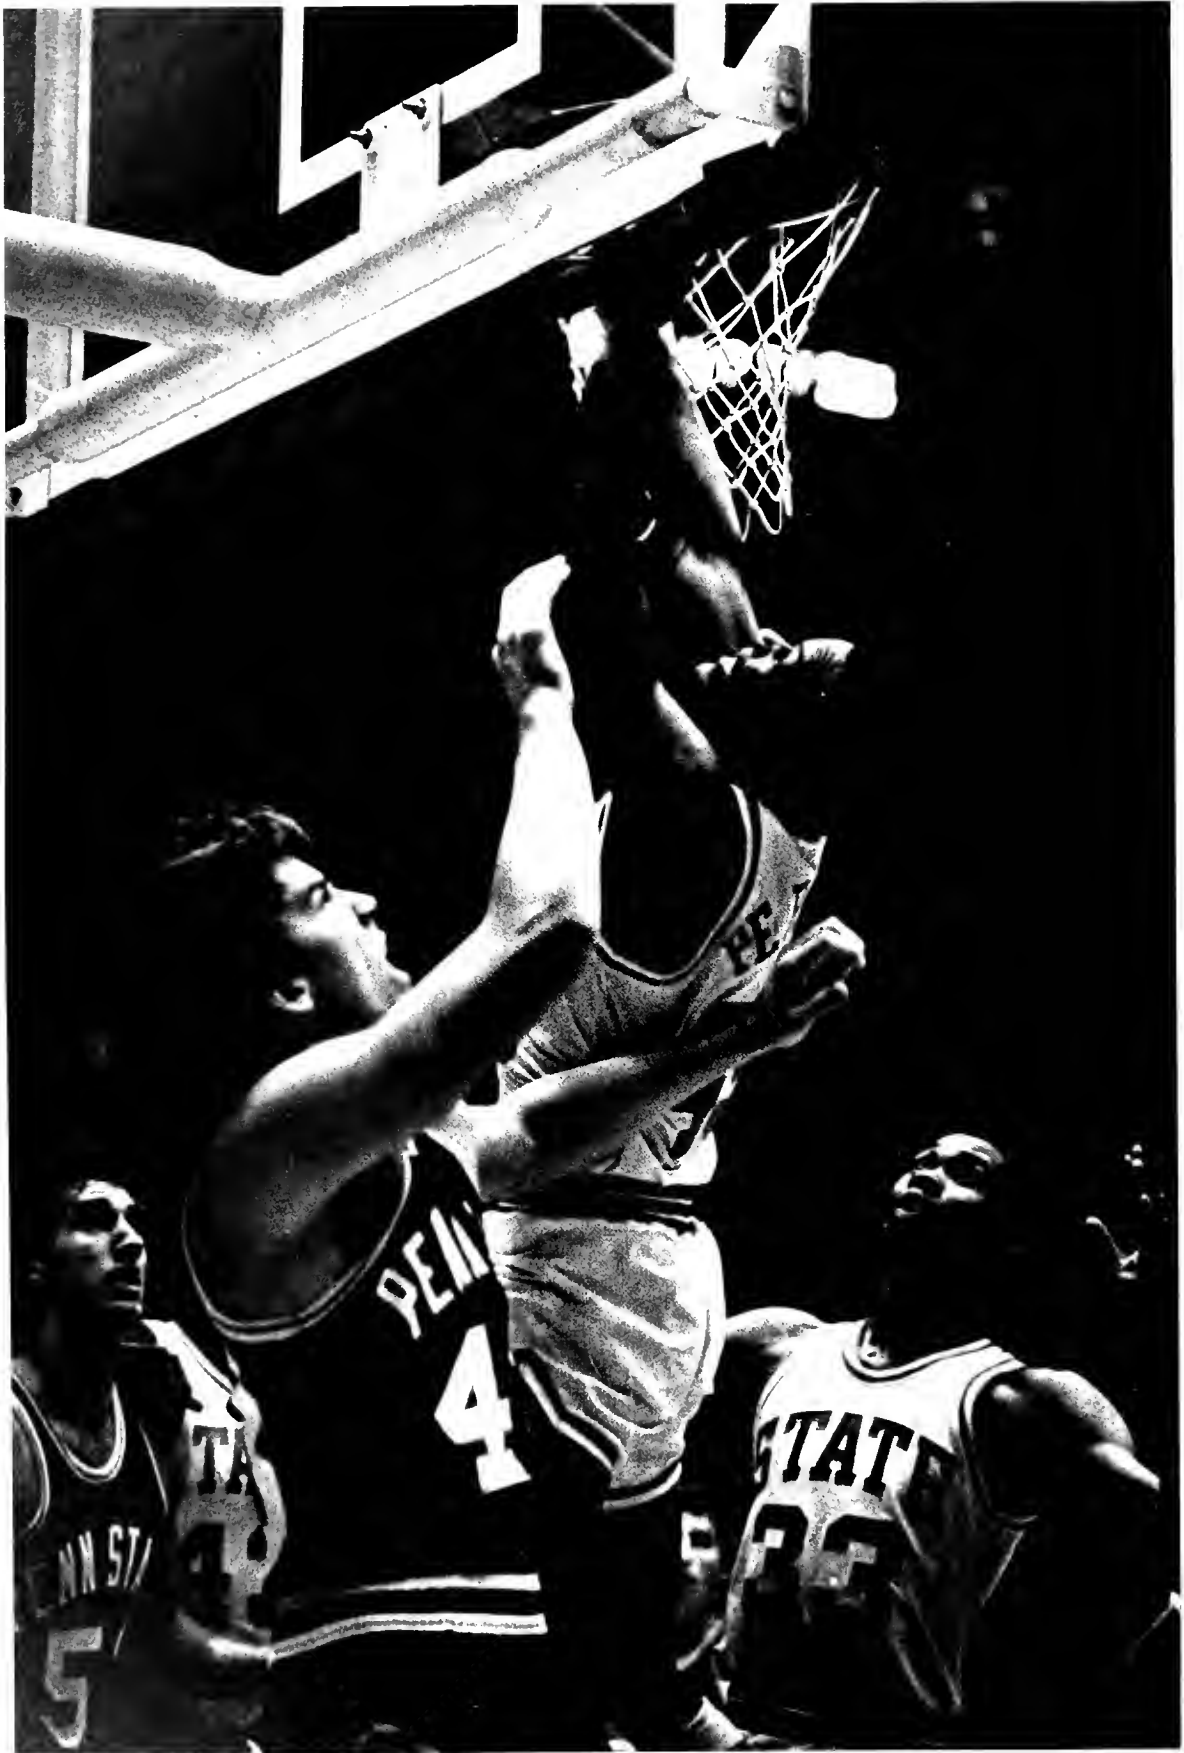

Pointing out his best game would be difficult. Statistically, it would have to be the 1977 Penn State game, where he ran for an incredible 251 yards, the most ever run against the Nittany Lions.

From an emotional standpoint, however, the 1977 Syracuse game would have had to have been his hardest. The game was dedicated to his mother, who had passed away only a week earlier.

All things considered though, most hard and fast Wolfpackers would swear Brown's best game was at Chapel Hill in 1978 — his last outing against Carolina. There Brown gained 186 yards, scored three touchdowns and set two ACC records.

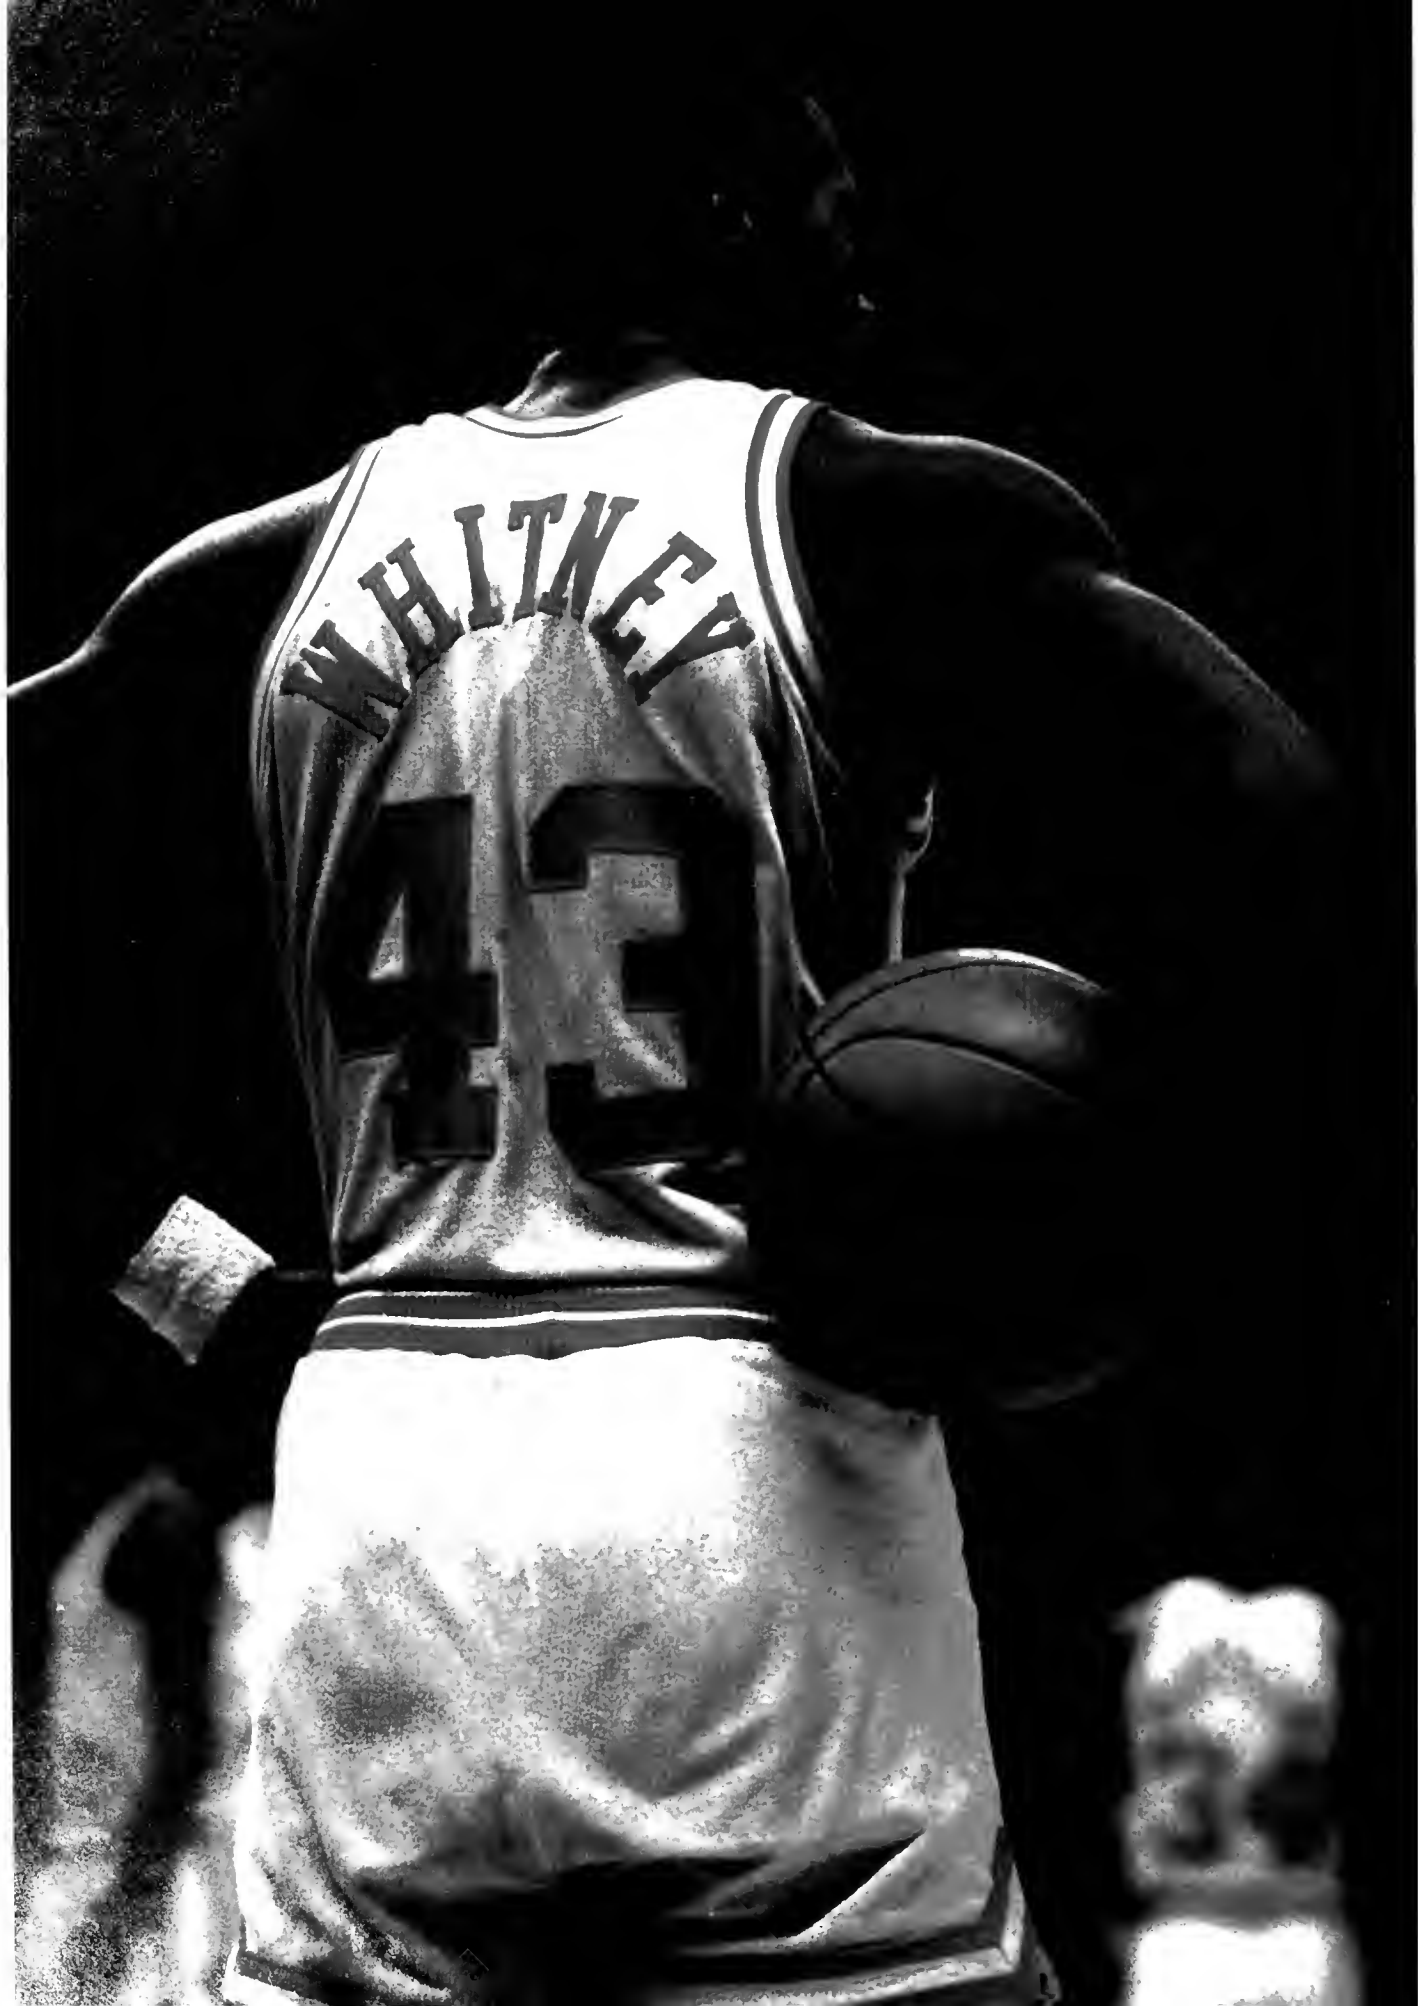

Ted Brown took his success seriously, reacting with a sophistication reminiscent of the advice Vince Lombardi gave his players — “Act like you've been there before.”

With nine of the top ten players returning from the 1977-78 squad, a group which fashioned a 21-10 record en route to the NIT finals, State's men's basketball team was expected to have the type of season in 1978-79 that would bring back some of the memories of the David Thompson glory days. In preseason, not only was the Wolfpack picked to challenge 1978 NCAA runnerup Duke for the ACC title, but top ten national rankings poured in from the wire service polls and every major publication from The Sporting News to Sports Illustrated.

Reasons for all of this hoopla were as numerous as the Pack was talented. Leading scorer Charles "Hawkeye" Whitney had lost as much as thirty pounds in the off-season, giving indication that the former conference co-rookie of the year (with Duke center Mike Gminski) was ready to return to the outstanding form he displayed in his freshman year. Also, the departure of UNC's All-American guard Phil Ford to the professional ranks left State's 6-3 Clyde "The Glide" Austin as the premier point guard in the league.

In addition to this dynamic duo, the starting five included the talents of Kendal "Tiny" Pinder, an unpolished, but enthusiastic, 6-7 senior forward whose rebounding rampage in the NIT (including 21 caroms against Detroit) was instrumental to the Pack's strong finish, fellow senior Tony Warren, a Raleigh product who was probably the squad's best all-round performer in 1977-78, and 6-11 sophomore pivotman Craig Watts, who had emerged as the first string center after beating out three year starter Glenn Sudhop for the job. Sudhop, sophomore standouts Kenny Matthews, Art Jones, and Donnie Perkins, and bullish freshman Scott Parzyeh combined to give the Pack one of the best benches in the country. All factors taken into account, coach Norm Sloan's charges appeared headed for a banner year.

Eight games into the season, everything had progressed as expected for the hoopsters. The Pack totally outclassed its opposition in the inaugural Alaska Shootout Tourney, topping highly ranked Louisville in the finals. Only a 65-63 loss to then-number one ranked Duke in the Big Four Tournament kept State from the ranks of the undefeated. The Wolfpack was having little trouble living up to the fanfare of the preseason.

And then came the ACC season.

In the first conference outing of the year (the Big Four results do not count in the ACC standings), the Pack showed a complete lack of defense in a 124-110 setback at Maryland. Then, after coming back strong in four non-conference games, State dropped four more big ACC games in succession. Included in this group was a one point loss to arch-rival North Carolina on a steal in the closing seconds of the game.

The Pack finally won its first conference outing of the year by blowing out Virginia at home. However, State failed to establish a trend with the game, as seen by losses to Clemson and lowly Wake Forest soon afterward.

Even the Wolfpack's unblemished record against non-conference foes came to a halt. Taking a 13-0 mark against outside competition into a battle with first ranked Notre Dame, State fought admirably in front of a packed house at Reynolds Coliseum before eventually falling by a 53-52 margin. The defeat was the first at home in eleven years for the Pack against non-conference teams.

As a result of all of the conference setbacks, the Pack found itself out of contention for the ACC regular season title in early February. In fact, the loss to Wake Forest left State with a 15-9 mark with four ACC games remaining. As such a record was probably too poor to gain even a return to the NIT, the Wolfpack was faced with the prospect of either winning the ACC Tournament or most likely missing out on post-season play.

Though the squad failed to challenge for the conference crown as expected, the season was not without excitement. Whitney, before hitting a shooting slump against Notre Dame, had raised his scoring output to around twenty points per game. The muscular junior established himself as one of the top players in the league, appearing in the top ten in almost every statistical category. The smooth Austin also upped his point total while handing out over four assists per game. Pinder performed capably at his forward position (over six rebounds/game), as did Warren and Matthews at the tall guard spot.

However, the Pack got almost no help from the pivot. Watts, saddled with foul trouble most of the time, was never able to show his real potential. Sudhop was no better off the bench than he had been as a starter. Perhaps the best indication of State's problem at center was the ovation that 7-3 freshman stringbean Chuck Nevitt received whenever he entered the lineup. Although an enthusiastic player the 190 pound Nevitt will not be a major factor until he adds more muscle to his frame. With a lack of production in the middle, Sloan was forced to use Pinder at center and Jones at forward in many situations, giving away an advantage in height in the process.

Thus, it appears that prospects for the 1979-80 edition of Wolfpack men's basketball will depend largely on either Sloan's ability to recruit a good big man, or a rapid development by Watts or Nevitt. With such stalwarts as Whitney, Austin, Matthews, and Jones returning, the nucleus for a superb squad is present. A dominating center, something the Pack has lacked since the graduation of Tommy Burleson in 1974, could combine with this group to give State a real chance for an ACC title and top ten national finish.

Women's Basketball

Despite a gut-wrenching defeat to Maryland in the finals of the ACC Tournament, State's women cagers had another banner year. Head coach Kay Yow's Lady Pack were in the nation's top 10 all year.

Last season, the Wolfpack wound up second in the nation. The number one position will be close to impossible for any team to come by though, with Old Dominion playing as well or better than any women's team ever has.

With three regular season games and all the post-season tournament action remaining, State sat on top of a 20-5 record. The Wolfpack finished with a 5-1 regular season record in the Atlantic Coast Conference, putting it in a three-way tie for regular season honors with Maryland and Clemson.

With an in-state game against Appalachian State still left on the schedule, the Wolfpack boasted an undefeated mark in its North Carolina games at 6-0.

Some of the Pack's top wins have been -an 83-76 exhibition victory over the People's Republic of China, a definite prospect for a high finish in the 1980 Olympics

-an 87-81 win over a scrappy UNC Tar Heel ballclub in Chapel Hill.

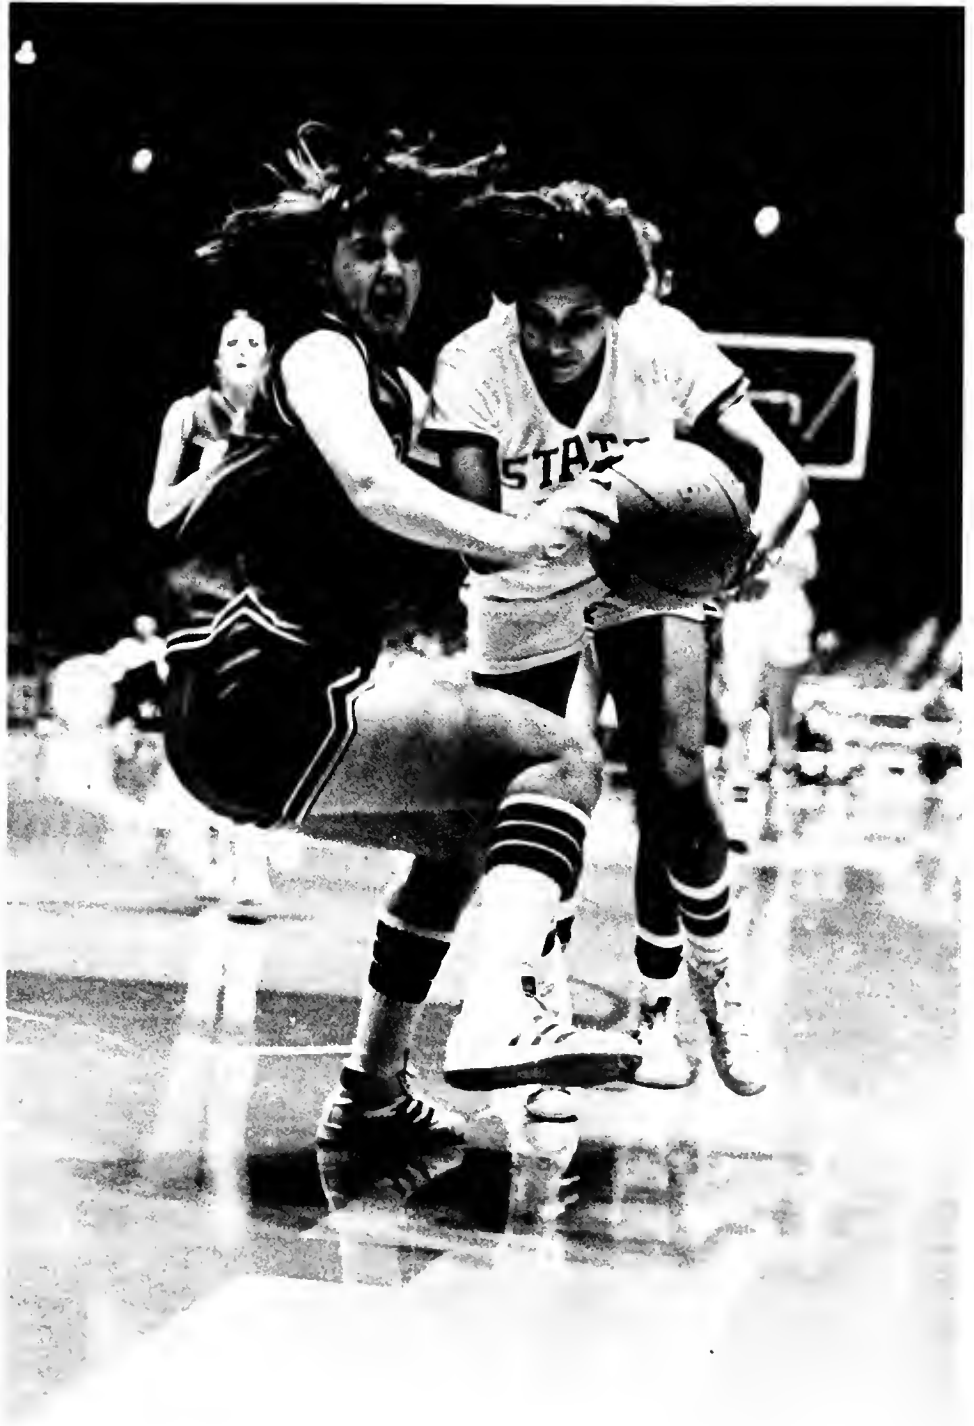

-a brilliant triumph over UCLA, last year's national champions.

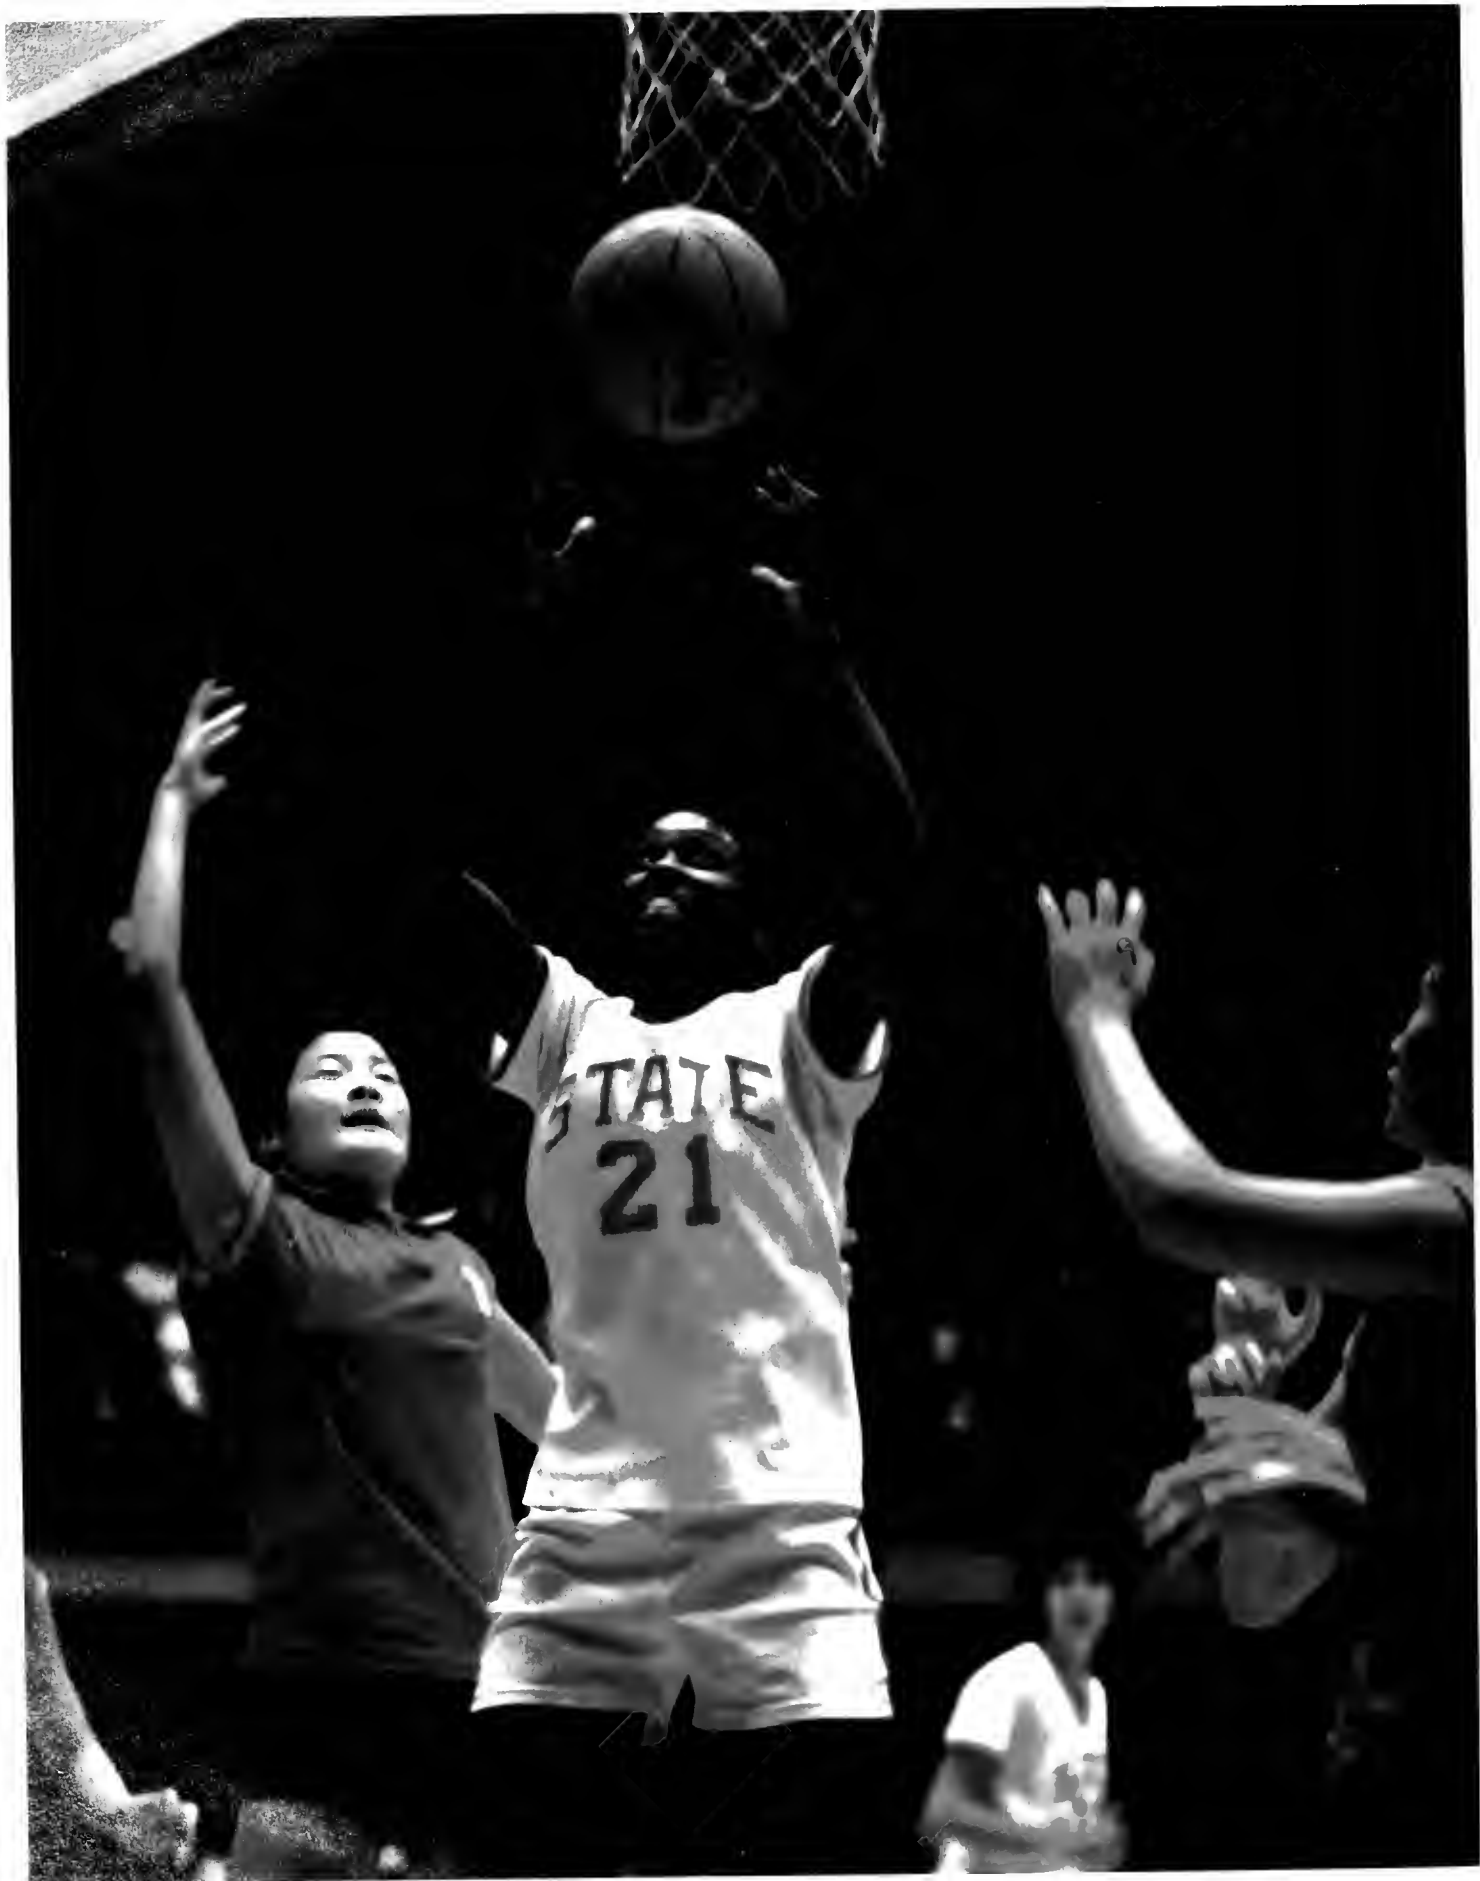

-a, down-to-the-wire, 53-52 victory over Maryland in College Park during the ACC's regular season.

-and another win over arch-rival Chapel Hill, 91-64.

Individually, the Pack was led by All-American Genia Beasley, Ronnie Laughlin, Trudi Lacey, June Doby, Ginger Rouse and senior point-guard Cristy Earnhardt.

The rest of the Pack bench is not to be slighted either. Each member would most likely be a starter on other teams around the country. Lorraine Owen, Beth Fielden, Kelia Coffey, and Michelle Parker have been vital cogs in making State's women's basketball team one of the best in the country.

The bees know . . .

Two years ago I had no desire to be on a yearbook staff, much less be the editor. For some odd reason, though, I saw a sign attached to the AGROMECK office door that stated "yearbook editor needed." I walked inside and before I knew it the job was mine.

Now putting together a yearbook for a university with 18,000 students was a challenge. Editors before me spoke of low participation and student apathy. There was even discussion that the publication of the yearbook be discontinued as it had at other universities.

My intentions were to produce a yearbook that could reflect the spirit and emotions of the students that make up this campus. This yearbook was designed to serve you, the student, as a historical record of the events of the year and as a reference to provide a name and face in later years. And as the years pass, this book will express who we were, what we were like and what we did.

As this book comes to a close, a special thanks must go to the staff—a mixture of talent, humor and a touch of insanity. To Jane, Chris, Sharon and LPT a mere thanks is highly inadequate. Your loyalty and support will remain unmatched for years to come. It's been fun.

If you don't believe me, ask the bees—they know . .
